mLINQS OFFERS NO-COST EXPENSE MANAGEMENT TO RELOCATE FEDERAL EMPLOYEES AFFECTED BY KATRINA

FAIRFAX, VA – (September 14, 2005) – mLINQS, LLC today announced that the company is offering all federal agencies, civilian and Defense, the use of its moveLINQ relocation expense management system at no charge for any employee or service member forced to relocate as a result of hurricane Katrina. This offer will remain in effect for moves that begin processing on or before March 31, 2006. moveLINQ is the only fully automated relocation expense management product that meets all federal requirements for compliance and security.

“Countless federal employees and military personnel have been left homeless, just like their private sector friends and neighbors,” said mLINQS President Greg McIntyre. “We have the system that can help relieve at least some of the stress these people and their families face as the result of Katrina’s devastation. moveLINQ can help them cut through the red tape and paperwork involved with government relocation.

“Our staff has already begun contacting the agencies we think were most affected by the storm to offer help, whether or not they are current customers. We’re also working with our hosted service resellers such as the Bureau of Public Debt (BPD) Administrative Resource Center to ensure that moves handled by BPD for the Treasury Department and other agencies will not incur any charges for the use of our system. Our goal is to contact key relocation managers in every agency within the next two weeks.”

The federal relocation process is more complicated than it is for workers in the private sector due to strict regulations, per diem rates, and related complex policies developed by each agency to prevent abuse. moveLINQ updates regulations and per diem rates automatically, is customizable to adhere to various policies and computes expenses to prevent errors.

Expenses incurred in a federal relocation can easily extend out for a full year after the move begins. Under its no-cost offer, mLINQS will continue processing transactions for any move started by March 31, 2006, and continue to do so as long as it takes to complete the relocation.

Further information about this exclusive mLINQS program is available by calling 703-322-9700, ext. 102 between 8:00 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. ET. General company, product and services information can be accessed at www.mlinqs.net.
